CLOSER LOOK: Late runner returns to the scene of his debut placing after failing to offer much in the sloppy Kentucky Derby 5 weeks ago; barn won this race 11 years ago with Sarava and his pilot stole the heat on the front end in 2008 with Da' Tara; added ground could benefit him, but he's been handled rather easily by some of these this year and will need to show up with quite a bit more to have a say in the outcome.

Drew the fence and never looked back after making the lead over sloppy footing in the G2 Peter Pan here last month, earning a career best Beyer in the process; maybe the effort is an indication he's now ready for bigger and better things or it could be that he's just a different animal when he's allowed to have things his own way on the front end; he's worked in the interim like he maintains his sharp form and from this inside draw maybe he's again able to make the lead but if he is he'll have a much stronger bunch looking to come after him than he did last time while tackling a significant amount of added ground today.

Looked to get back on track in taking the G1 Arkansas Derby, but the figure came back pretty light and the big number he earned in the G2 Remsen last fall began to look more like the aberration; had some trouble in the Derby slop but he really didn't do much running but it does appear as if he'll stay the trip for a trainer/jockey combo that won this heat's 2007 renewal with filly Rags to Riches; Velazquez also won last year's Belmont with Union Rags; he took a G2 stake in his lone start here last fall and is working well for his local return so maybe he's able to get in the mix for a share of this.

New York bred was ok out of restricted company over synthetic footing in Kentucky but he's another who didn't do much running in the Derby; his rider is a 2 time Belmont winner having taken it with Sarava and then Birdstone in 2004; he has only run a handful of times and is eligible to improve with experience but it looks as if he has a long way to go in order to threaten some of these.

As bold as this Derby winner looked in Kentucky is about as dull as he was in the Preaknees in Baltimore, but he was stuck down on the fence for a good part of the heat while looking to run at a pacesetter who had things his own way through easy splits in that odds on defeat; off the pace type did run off 5 straight prior to that one and it certainly appears as if he'll handle the added ground in a heat that his paternal grandsire won over 20 years ago; barn won this race in 1989 with Easy Goer; with just an honest clip in front of him this time he appears to be in line to get back on track for a barn that doesn't rush its runners to the starting gate; they'll have him to beat.

Preakness winner had things his own way while wiring the field in Baltimore and now he'll tackle the added ground which he's bred to appreciate; he's proven he can run fast given the proper circumstances, but don't know that he'll be able to dictate the fractions today and without that advantage he's been rather ordinary; his pilot has won the Belmont Stakes 3 times, most recently in 2001 with Point Given and the Lukas barn last won this heat in 2000 with Commendable after running off 3 straight with Tabasco Cat, Thunder Gulch (Stevens aboard) and Editor's Note in the mid '90s; prefer to side against the repeat and limit his use to underneath in exotics.

 Pletcher's second runner in here is a limited winner who was unable to advance through the first allowance condition here last month; they may have high hopes for him and with just 3 starts under his belt he has a right to improve quickly, but he just doesn't appear to be a solid fit with these at this time.

 Third Pletcher runner likes to take back and make one run and just didn't have enough late to threaten the top 2 in the Derby who return here as well; Castellano will get back aboard a runner who given his style should adore the added quarter mile of this heat; with an honest clip in front of him and 12 panels in which to make his run he looks to be the main danger late.

 Earned quite a bit of attention for his troubled run in the Derby but didn't back it up with his subsequent performance in Baltimore; barn's second runner in here has quite a bit of ground to make up on some of these, but he, too, was victimized by pace dynamics in the Preakness and maybe he's set to move forward now on the stretchout at what figures to be a big price; could be worth trying to get into the deep exotics slots.

 Drew outside un the Derby and didn't do much running and now he'll get a new pilot for his return to this circuit; he's certainly been working like he appreciates the return to New York and he wasn't far off a couple of pretty good ones in the Wood Memorial 2 months back so he does have some ability; expecting a better effort at an nice price today but don't know if that will be good enough to win.

 Barn's fourth runner in here ran off through punishing splits in the Derby and had nothing left, so now they'll remove the hood in an effort to settle him down some; he's been breezing well since shipping here and his pilot did win this race in 2010 with Drosselmeyer; near miss in the G1 Blue Grass proved that he can settle and offer a late kick but in his lone dirt start prior to that one he was crushed by one of his uncoupled stablemates who he'll catch again in here.

 Filly tries the boys for the initial time for the outfit that conditioned the last female to do so in this heat; barn's fifth runner in here goes back to Rosie who was aboard for the impressive score in Louisiana that began her season; Pletcher believes she's the big, rugged type of filly it takes to go with the stronger sex and she certainly hasn't done much wrong in her brief career; with a couple of solid recent local breezes under her belt she can't be overlooked.

 His late run threw the wrench into most Derby exotics plays as he split a couple of these in getting second money in that one; colt again worked well prior to leaving his Churchill base and it certainly looks as if the more ground he gets the better it will be for him; he won't get such a hot clip in front of him this time and he does draw the outside slot today; maybe for a share from here. -Steve Grabowski
