CLOSER LOOK: New York bred earned a career best Beyer in his local prep for this in the G2 Peter Pan and his late run from well out of it was certainly impressive as he got within a length of the undefeated odds on winner that day; his barn and pilot won this race a couple of years ago with Tonalist, denying California Chrome in his Triple Crown bid; while he's on the improve and maybe the added trip will play to his benefit, he'll need to keep getting better to prove a serious threat.

He wasn't able to win the Kentucky Derby off a designed 8 weeks on the bench but he wasn't embarrassed and did encounter some trouble in the bulky heat; his winning effort in the G2 Tampa Bay Derby does play out well in here and he's got a right to take a big step forward second time back from the break for an outfit that does well with this type; his barn won this race in 2013 with Palace Malice and in 2007 with the filly Rags to Riches; he's also got sharp positional foot which could put him in a great spot early and it looks like he'll take to the added distance today; contender.

He's another who prefers to drop to the back of the pack and unleash one big run and that strategy left him short at the wire after some early trouble from an inside draw in the Kentucky Derby; he'll get a switch to a pilot who has won this race twice, aboard Palace Malice in 2013 and in 2010 with Drosselmeyer; he'll stay the trip and he was really just a jump or 2 shy of hitting the board last time, but he won't get fractions in front of him like he did in his last couple of starts and that could soften the potency of his kick.

Barn's second runner in here ran extremely well while trying stakes company and slop, each for the first time, in just his second start of the year in the Preakness a few weeks back; 2 of the guys who finished ahead of him at Pimlico do return in this spot as well, but his running style should give him the shot to get the jump on them and with just 4 career starts under his belt he's certainly got a right to get better; his pilot won this race in 2012 with Union Rags and in 2007 with Rags to Riches; they may end up having to run him down to win.

Goes first time for a new barn in the biggest test of his career after tiring as the chalk at a much shorter trip in allowance company here a couple of weeks back; gray has speed and it looks as if he will be the pacesetter today, but even if he is able to clear and have things his own way, it's tough to imagine he's able to save enough for the drive to hold them all off; one to catch.

Maiden missed just a neck in a slow renewal of the G1 Wood Memorial across town a couple of months ago before losing his best shot at the break from the inside draw in the Kentucky Derby; he returned to his Southern California base to regroup and he has worked well in preparation for this, but he's still got a lot to prove before he can be considered to be at the level of some of today's foes; can't use him for any of the money spots.

Preakness winner has been on his best game this spring, having taken a couple of G1s that sandwiched a sharp late running placing in the Kentucky Derby; 2 of his 3 big efforts have come over wet tracks and his running style leaves him with work to do turning for home which won't help if the fractions are as moderate as they appear to be on paper; his pilot won this race in 2009 with Summer Bird; accomplished colt deserves the honor of having to be knocked off the hill, but making his fourth start over the past 2 months, he may not pack the same punch today; they'll have him to beat.

Two time G1 SW router certainly likes the Keeneland surface, but he hasn't done a lot of running in stakes company anywhere else; late runner was no match for Exaggerator at Churchill and he simply hasn't run fast enough to be a serious player in this heat; he's got some improving to do to have a say here.

Barn's second runner in here never really got on track in his Kentucky Derby run after encountering a bunch of trouble; his prior effort in the G1 Arkansas Derby was solid, but he got a nice setup in that race and doubt the circumstances will come close to that today; he'll get the services of a top local pilot for his first try over the Big Sandy and does have a right to move forward today. -Steve Grabowski
